Any suggestion on how we can help you connect with others in the church?

What needs can we at Covenant help meet while at school?

What is the purpose?

This fall we are starting a program where we will pair college students with Covenant families. This is a great opportunity for families to love and disciple college-aged students and give them an even better sense of belonging to our church through simple interactions such as Sunday lunches, sending them text messages, or occasionally offering your home as a quiet place to study or do laundry. This ministry will not only impact students but you and your family as well in seeing God working through you to make a Godly, valuable difference in their lives.

How much do I have to do? How much will this cost me?

Connection is key. Keeping in contact with the student and doing something with them every once in a while lets them know that someone loves them and they are a vital part of our church and community. You may feel you are lacking in resources, but this is not a problem. Here are some ideas that students love...

- Take them out to lunch every once in a while
- Invite them over to cook a meal together
- Go to a sporting event (even your child's)
- Send them text messages
- Send them mail and care packages during finals week
- Invite them to help you in your ministries
- Offer your home as a quiet place for homework or laundry
- Take them fishing or golfing
- Invite them on a family outing
- Invite them over to watch a movie or play games

Requirements?

We ask that there is some kind of interaction with your students at least twice a month. We are going to pair each family with at least 2 students. This will help in everyone feeling comfortable from the beginning. You will have the option on the sign up form to request between 2 and 4 students.

This is a commitment for the whole school year – August to May. (Although, we are fairly confident that you'll want to continue the relationship long after the school year ends)

If interested, please see Jim or Christy Upton

There is a signup form we are asking you to fill out so we can place students with your family.
